

I think it's unfair of a corporation to only show only one side of an issue. Corporations benefit from a free United States, but forcing one's opinion on the public (by only showing one side of an issue) is anti-freedom. Since Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, they are obligated by law to serve the public interest. Their recent attempt to force their local stations to show an anti-Kerry documentary, without showing a balanced picture, is therefore abusing the public trust. They should be held accountable for their attempt to break the law by limiting access.
